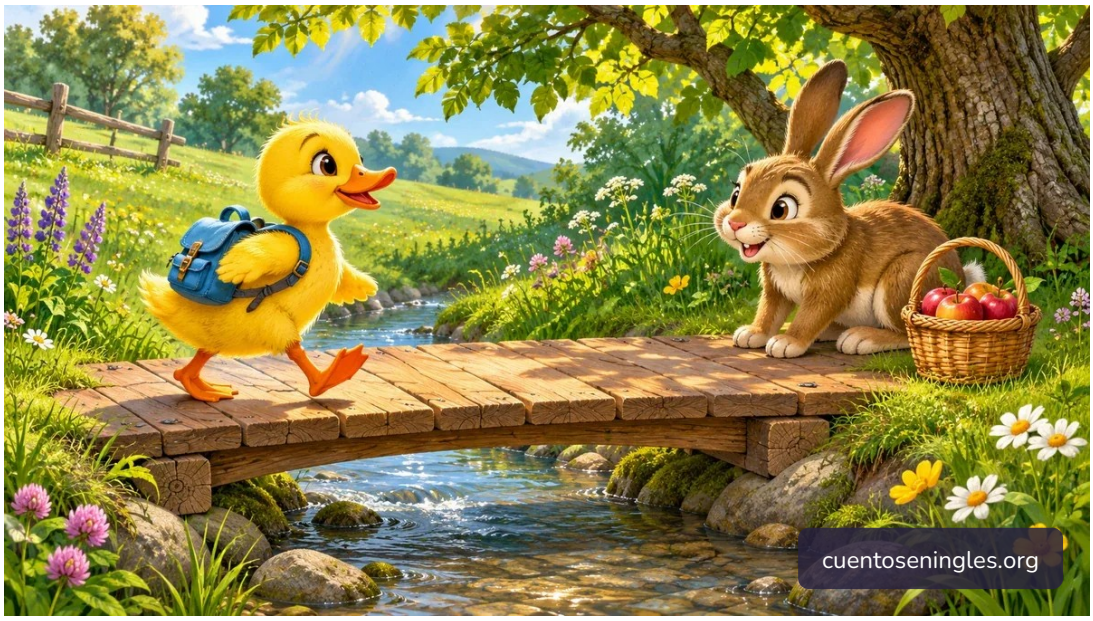
The Duck and the Small Bridge



A little duck walks to the garden. His friend the rabbit has apples for him. But a small stream runs across the path.

The duck can swim, but he has a new backpack. He wants to keep it dry. He stops beside the water.

The rabbit sees him from the garden. "Wait here!" she says. She brings a wide board. Together, they put it across the stream.

The duck walks slowly across the board. Now he has a small bridge! He thanks the rabbit and puts some apples in his backpack.

Every afternoon, the friends meet at the bridge. Sometimes the duck brings bread. Sometimes he brings flowers. Today, he brings a bigger bag to carry more apples home.
